

ARIZONA JOURNAL-MINER

A. C. MARTIN, Editor and Prop'r.

Chief Justice Fuller has made a decision by which the World's Fair will be opened on Sundays.

A lawyer never asks for a jury when he's trying a new brand of whiskey.—L. A. Express.

The army bill was defeated at the recent election in Germany. The Socialists were successful.

California's two $6,000 outlaws have been captured. If the Apache who are on the trail of the $5,000 Arizona Kid succeed in running him to earth, two sources of news will have been dried up.

At the end of the present fiscal year sixty-eight clerks and thirty-nine special agents of the general land office will be discharged, owing to the reduction made by the last congress in the appropriations.

It is announced from the east that Cleveland will be a candidate to succeed himself. If he wants to be common such there is no doubt about his ability to get the nomination, as the democratic party is not strong enough to thwart his desires.

Democrats complain that Mr. Cleveland is slow in making appointments to office; the republicans complain at his rapidity in supplanting them, and the mugsyumps—well they split the difference with a conglomerate of dissatisfied grumbling.—Ex.

A Chinaman in the Montana penitentiary, under a life sentence for murder, having failed to register under the Geary act, has commenced proceedings to have himself deported. He is one of the very few of his countrymen who believe the Geary act should be enforced.

Verily, the days of misrepresentation are upon us. A recent issue of the St. Paul Globe says the democratic party has shown that it is a progressive party. Will the Globe furnish an unbelieved public with date and place at which the democratic party made such a showing? Was it when the Globe editor was placed in the diplomatic service?

The editor of the JOURNAL-MINER has not expressed dissatisfaction at a single verdict rendered yet, our contemporary, to the contrary notwithstanding. Whenever it feels like expressing an opinion on any subject it will do so, however, and not be deterred from it by any personal slurs cast on it any one.

The editor of our contemporary seems inclined not to permit this paper to have an opinion, in regard to any subject, without being subjected to vituperative abuse from him. We shall continue to call things by their right names, or as they appear to us, regardless what our self constituted censor thinks of them.

After the officers had the fight with Sontag and Evans, and had succeeded in disabling the latter so that he could not fight any longer, a new set of officials, who had taken no part in the fight were told of his whereabouts and went and arrested him, and now claim the reward. This may be termed the sublimity of check.

Just as a New Orleans colored man of unpleasant temper has lifted an ax wherewith to brain an acquaintance (the pair having differed concerning the theory and practice of crap shooting) he had the untoward experience of falling dead. The occasion had excited him. The lesson seems to be that even the process of braining people should be undertaken calmly and without undue violence or excitement.

The enterprising Examiner has sent out two reportorial expeditions to interview Sontag and Evans, both of which were announced as successful. If that paper really wants to display true nerve enterprise, it should get the long haired poet of the Sierras to interview Kid, the renegade Apache. He has taken notes in the stock of his rifle, for victims killed, to one of either Sontag or Evans.

The St. Johns Herald continues its agitation on behalf of the Keeley treatment for a lot of chronic "jags" at St. Johns. In its last issue it says: "It would be a good thing for a few old cronies around St. Johns if a Keeley institute were started here, provided, the treatment would cure them and they could be prevailed upon to avail themselves of the opportunity. As it is now it is a question with several, the writer among the number, owing to their peculiar ways and their persistent habit of forcing themselves upon them, whether life is worth living." Speaking for ourselves, and we are satisfied we voice the sentiment of nine-tenths of the entire community, the Keeley cure, or any other cure, that would make sober men out of these three or four would be hailed with delight and regarded as a joy forever.

The Season for July is out, with an elegant display of costumes for summer. It gives one hundred costumes for ladies and children, embracing the newest designs of every desired style of dress. It also gives fifty-five new designs in art work, embroidery, knitting, crochet, fancy lace, pretty ornaments, so plainly illustrated and designed for reproduction and plainly described as to make the work a thing of pleasure and profit. There are many quaint and pretty costumes for the little tots. Every mother's heart will rejoice over this number. All ages are provided for, from grandmother to baby. This is one of the few fashion magazines that keeps exclusively to fashion and art. No reading matter other than descriptive of the illustrations and styles ever permitted on its pages. This alone makes it invaluable. It should be in every household. Yearly, $3.50; single copies, 30 cents. The International News Co., 39 and 55 Duane St., New York.

The World's Fair.

No one must go expecting to see everything and keep on investigating all he sees. Some idea of the immensity of the exhibit can be had from the statement that a person entering the manufacturers' hall walking at the rate of four miles an hour and ten hours a day would have to walk seven days in order to pass through the aisles. If three minutes were spent at each exhibit it would take twenty-one years and three months to go through that hall alone. If this was kept up in all the halls and State buildings, Old Methusalem would be double-discounted in the length of life.—Ex.

FITTY, PRINTED AND PELTINENT.

Mr. Cleveland is said to be in doubt as to the public sentiment towards Hawaii. The people have certainly spoken plainly enough, through the press and the mouths of prominent men.

Mr. Gladstone is discovering how impossible is the task of getting English support for the Home Rule bill and at the same time pleasing the Irish.

President Cleveland, ex-Secretary Whitney and other prominent politicians of democratic faith are reported to have dropped $50,000 in a pulp mill. It seems to have been a case of the grinders becoming grindees.

Rhode Island is a small state, but he has a republican governor who has backbone enough for an elephant. May his tribe increase.

Nobody objects to the showing up of fraudulent pensioners wherever they may be found; but every patriotic citizen should object most strenuously to the slur against every veteran on the pension roll that are being printed in the democratic press.

It would be just as well for the money-doctors to remember that Mr. Cleveland is a good and desirable thing in the currency of a nation, safety is a better thing.

The late Benjamin F. Butler should have lived a while longer. He would have been delighted to find his income tax idea adopted by the democratic party.

Didn't Governor Flower stretch things a little when he said: "Tammany loves Cleveland?"

Dave Hill may squirm, Carlisle and Graham frown. But the thing will not down—Grover's out for another term.

Secretary Morton may not know much about farming, but he appears to have seen the populists through common sense glasses when he said: "I am opposed to all of their vicious vagaries."

There are indications that Mr. Cleveland is secretly urging on newspaper attacks upon the proposal to impose an income tax; he doesn't want such a tax, but he isn't going to say so until certain that it will be killed.

Chairman Harbry of the democratic National Committee is out in favor of an issue of $100,000,000 in bonds by the administration. Is this another public pulse-feeler?

Those who are disposed to charge all the financial troubles of the country to the Sherman silver law may find it difficult to explain the absence of the financial millennium after the repeal of that law.

Republicans are not saying "I told you so" to any extent, because they cannot rejoice at the present condition of affairs, although they predicted during the campaign what would follow democratic successes.

The hoary headed old chestnut about the capture of the southern states by the populists, which ought to have been buried forever by the returns from the Presidential election, has again been set upon its feet.

Las Vegas Hot Springs.

L. F. Hale, who spent six or seven weeks at the Las Vegas Hot Springs for chronic rheumatism, speaks in the highest terms of the medicinal value of this famous resort. He says that he has received great benefit to his rheumatic troubles from the baths, while his general health has not been so good in years as at present. He says that patients who arrive there suffering from acute rheumatism or kindred diseases are cured in a few days and go away rejoicing, and while it takes a longer time for chronic cases, such as his was, to yield to the efficacy of the healing waters, all cases succumb sooner or later. The place is noted, not only for its qualities as a sanitarium, but as one of the most popular resorts in the United States. It is completely furnished in its furnishings as well as in its service and none in the country stands in higher esteem among travelers and tourists than this. The climate and scenery is also delightful so that taking it all in all, aside from the curative qualities of the springs, no better place can be selected for spending the vacation than at Las Vegas Hot Springs.

Mining Intelligence.

The Burson mill which has been placed on properties in the Hassayampa mining district by its inventor, H. Burson, was started up on Saturday. The ore at present is obtained from the Ohio mine, but contiguous claims will also furnish ore for the mill. The capacity of the mill is fifteen tons per day, and this will be increased as rapidly as the mines are developed and an increase of ore is obtained and the mill is proven a success on this class of ore.

John S. Jones continues to run his mill in Chapparral gulch. He says that he has a sufficient supply of water to keep it running for another month by which time he expects an additional supply of water from the summer rains. Should the rainy season prove favorable he hopes to be able to obtain a water supply sufficient to keep his mill in operation all the time.

Dr. J. Miller has returned from his Westlake mine, located four miles south of town. He says it is looking in splendid condition. He has between 800 and 1,000 feet of development work done on the property, and he has concluded that the showing is sufficient now to justify the erection of a mill, and he proposes to immediately enter into negotiations for the purchase of machinery for a mill for the reduction of the ore.

The Bogs mine which has been closed for several months in order to get the ore piled up on the dumps worked in the smelter has started up again with a force of thirty-five men, and the camp has resumed its old time activity again.

Mr. J. J. Wragovich recently connected with the S. P. Co., in San Francisco, arrived yesterday and will take the position of chief clerk, under Mr. F. A. Healey, general freight and passenger agent of the S. P. & P. R. railway. Mrs. Wragovich will arrive about July first.

Board of Supervisors.

Saturday, June 17.

Board met at 10 o'clock, all the members and the clerk being present. The bill of Mrs. Wallahan for $60 for outdoor relief for the care of Mrs. Rosa Miller was audited and ordered paid. The bill of H. McNeill for $16.60 for a blank book was also ordered paid.

An order was passed requesting the territorial board of equalization to list the S. F. P. & P. railway for taxation. Explanatory of the action of the board in this matter, it may be said that it was done as a precautionary measure solely.

One of the gentlemanly(?) allusions which appeared this morning in the paper that never indulges in personalities, except when first attacked, reads as follows: "The continued slurs of Mr. Jingle-Cash-Money-or-get-dirty-water-throw-on-you, cast at Sheriff Lowry, are disgusting people of all parties."

Woman's Onward March.

There came a time in the history of my life when I suddenly realized that I can tell a briarwood from a meerschaum while it is being smoked. It was borne in upon me that by years of subtle training I had come to know a "Perfecto" from a "two-for-a-nickel." It flashed upon my sinful soul that I, Sappho, the scorned of nicotine, was myself a connoisseur of the delicate and difficult art of distinguishing—even from the next room—the varying characteristics of differing kinds of Turkish tobacco. I found, to my amazement, that I knew the perfumed Turkish cigarettes lose their national characteristics coming over land and sea to Boston, and that a Richmond cigarette is more grateful vicariously to my nostrils.

I can smell this moment the peculiar peanut nuttiness of an old clay pipe and the almond nuttiness of a new Henry Clay cigar, and I can recall to a whiff the experimental odor of a cornucopia brimming with rank plug. Yet I never choked but once in my life. Then I choked on burning mule leaves recommended for a cold! It is one of the results of the opening of modern occupations for women that I have become so learned in this way. I don't know yet whether or not I am proud of my wisdom, but it is certain that I have no vicarious amusement more charmingly altruistic than smoking.—A Woman in Boston Transcript.

The Use of Poetry.

Nearly all the other arts have an official standing. They are endowed, perpetuated, made part of the appellation of life. But we are asceredulous of poetry as of the sea serpent, and the affidavits of those who have seen the thing itself do not convince a sceptical world. Poetry's killing force is its wealth, and of late has grown beyond the dreams of avarice. Money, which can call into existence many of the arts, which can rear architectures, lay out gardens, give to household decoration a sumptuous beauty impossible to poor ages, which we greatly love in the creation of music and painting—money has no potency over the proud and disdainful muse.

But the future of poetry is immense, because when actualities oppress, when utilities task, when "tired of all these, for restless death," all we need do is to open our books and without struggle to partake the strife, without effort to attain the ease, without putting off mortality to have part in the immortality of those eternal things which are the creations of the divine poets. Hence Leon sailed far for his failed fountain of youth, but the wisest man is he who takes down his Homer or his Shakespeare and discovers there in the spring the Spaniard failed to find.—Forum.

A Strange Selection.

It is an easy and very profitable business to smuggle rifles into Morocco. A weapon may be bought in Gibraltar for $10 and sold in the interior for five or six times that sum. Smugglers are continually running over in feluccas and beaching these arms somewhere between Cape Spartel and Tangier, and curious are the devices by which they accomplish their transport.

One smuggler told a traveler that he ran his cargo into Tangier bay after dark and unloaded the rifles on the beach not a quarter of a mile from the custom house.

"Who assists you in unloading?" asked the traveler.

"I generally employ the porters of the custom house," was the innocent reply.

Then, noting the surprise and amusement of his hearers, he added: "They are more skilled in unloading than other laborers."

It had evidently neither occurred to him nor to the porters that they might betray him.—Youth's Companion.

Hypnotism and Dentistry.

For a quarter of a century I have been hoping that the principles of hypnotism as now developed might be applied so as to bring relief to patients during dental operations. It is with pleasure that I am able today to report a pronounced success in that direction—a success that I believe will continue, and the methods will be so formulated that the art will be within the reach of every intelligent operator on the human teeth. I found that it was the opinion of writers on hypnotism that pain would always wake a patient from the hypnotic sleep unless such patient was in a somnambulistic condition. I felt it might be quite possible to derive distinct benefit in the lighter stages if they could be kept continuous. I soon believed it possible, and after a diligent study of Bernheim I commenced to hypnotize, and my first effort proved a success.—Thomas Fillebrown, D. M. D., in Dental Review.

Smoke and Cold Weather.

There can be no doubt that the smoke blanket modifies the temperature of the city. There is nothing new in the fact. Gilbert White of Selborne, who died 100 years ago, wrote: "When a thermometer hangs abroad in a frosty night, the intervention of a cloud shall immediately raise the mercury 10 degrees, and a clear sky shall again compel it to descend to the former gauge."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Marshall, Brunswick House, S. F.; Geo. A. Warner, 551 California St.; S. F. M. Co., 127 Kearny St. S. F., and many others who have found relief from constipation and sick headaches. G. W. Vincent, of 6 Terrace Court, S. F., writes: "I am 60 years of age and have been troubled with constipation in the early days of my life. It came to me in California in 1879 and I knew it would keep me and it has. For the first time in years I can sleep and my system is regular and in splendid condition.
